Welcome to the UdL

Thank you for choosing us as a destination for your research career.

The UdL combines a long and fruitful university tradition with a young and dynamic structure that is committed to quality training and research, advanced teaching methods and internationalization.

It is currently part of Campus Iberus, a Campus of International Excellence shared with the Universities of Zaragoza, La Rioja and Pública de Navarra, whose mission is the generation, dissemination and application of knowledge.

Mission, vision and objectives of the research

The UdL's research mission is the generation, dissemination and application of knowledge.

It takes the form of improving the living conditions of citizens, with participation in the dissemination of culture, the creation of wealth through research and technology transfer, and the formation of human capital in its own environment.

It is also characterised by a competitive research activity linked to the specificities of the territory, both in basic and applied research which, in turn, seeks to collaborate with the national and international research system and to promote innovation.

To this end, it considers it necessary to make progress in achieving the following objectives:

Research to create knowledge

Educating, transferring and disseminating existing knowledge

Providing services related to R&D&I

Iberus Connect Programme

Specific support to facilitate adaptation and integration at the UdL.

The UdL participates in the Iberus Connect Programme, within the Campus Iberus, together with the University of La Rioja, the Public University of Navarra and the University of Zaragoza.

This programme aims to help trainee researchers from abroad to adapt to university and doctoral life, with the support of other experienced doctoral students, who act as advisors in the relevant administrative and academic processes at the university and beyond.

The advisor can also help in other aspects to facilitate adaptation to the city and to the general life of the doctorate.

Guide for the incorporation of foreign researchers at the UdL

A photograph of various laboratory glassware pieces, including flasks, beakers, and a graduated cylinder, arranged on a light-colored surface. In the background, a computer keyboard is visible, suggesting a scientific or research environment.

This document sets out the basic steps to carry out by foreign researchers to join the UdL.

UdL Language Institute

The UdL has the Language Institute that offers a wide range of language courses. Information on these courses, official exams and other procedures is available on the institute's website.

It is important to note that access to teaching and research staff positions requires accreditation of a C1 level of proficiency in Catalan. The Institute of Languages offers different courses aimed at this specific objective.

The screenshot shows the website of the Universitat de Lleida Language Institute. The header features the university's logo and name, along with links for 'Perfils d'accés' (Access Profiles) and 'Seu Electrònica' (Electronic Office). A search bar is also present. The main content area is titled 'Escola d'Idiomes' (Language School) and displays a grid of course categories: Alemany, Català, Italià, Portuguès, Anglès, Llengua de Signes, Japonès, Rus, Castellà, Francès, Occità, and Xinès. Below the grid are links for 'Avisos' (Announcements), 'Certificats dels cursos' (Course Certificates), and 'Contacte' (Contact).
